

San Francisco again has a Confederate flag whipping from a pole at Civic Center. But with a difference. Its original Confederate flag was stolen during the massive civil rights demonstration July 12 after civil rights leaders had protested it being with the Center's 18-flag display. Last week the Sertoma Club provided a new one. But this time Mayor Shelley decreed a 50-star U.S. flag must fly above it. So the two wave from the same pole now. Solomon Shelley, they'll call him.
