

Stones rolling to a new video

HOLLYWOOD—The Rolling Stones are planning to make a video album of 12 of their classic songs in Los Angeles in August.

Of course, the Stones do have a habit of changing their plans, but they're serious enough about the video that they have a representative in L.A. now, checking out soundstage availability during the Olympics. What he finds is that the Stones will have their choice of soundstages, with many TV productions scheduled to move to out-of-town locations during the Olympic crunch.

MARILYN BECK

Work or not, Mick Jagger (a sponsor of the British gymnastics team) and Keith Richards (a sponsor of his country's decathlon squad) intend to be here at that time. And they also intend to topline Bill Graham's projected pre-Olympics, mega-star, rock-pop concert in the Rose Bowl. Unless plans change.

ON THE PERSONAL SIDE: Sam Elliott and

Katharine Ross should be husband and wife by the time you read this. The "Yellow Rose" actor and his love of several years left for Hawaii last week with the intention of marrying there over the weekend. Sam and Katharine are expecting a child in September, and their friends report that the actress, who's 42, is ecstatic that motherhood is finally on the way.

Lorna Luft and husband, Jake Hooker, are planning to move from New York to Los Angeles as soon as their son, who was born last Wednesday, is up to the rigors of traveling. Lorna, who's hankering to do more film and TV work in Hollywood, won't have to worry about baby-sitters. Her half-sister, Liza Minnelli, has volunteered. In fact, she was ready to become her nephew's full-time nursemaid when she was at Lorna's side following the birth.

HELLO AGAIN: Buddy Ebsen is returning to TV, as a regular on "Matt Houston." The 76-year-old former "Barnaby Jones" joins the series this fall, playing Lee Horsley's uncle, a retired O.S.S. officer-turned-college professor who gives up the quiet campus life for big-time sleuthing with Houston.

WAIT AND SEE: Insiders tell me that Michael Jackson and his siblings will avoid New York, L.A., San Francisco and Chicago on their concert tour