THE OBSERVER.

SUNDAY, JANUARY 18, 1824.

The Jamaica Papers in the 15th November have been inserted. The House of Assembly have passed a vote of thanks to Commodore Sir Robert Owen, for his valuable services and prompt attention to the commercial and naval interests of that island. On the 1st November, Mr. Musett Brown introduced a bill to repeal the Registry Act, which he characterized as a most oppressive, odious, and oppressive measure, without being of the slightest utility. The House lost time until the 9th, acting upon the suggestion made by the hon. member for St. Andrew's, that the bill be read a second time tomorrow.

HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY—JAMAICA, Nov. 15. 1823.

Mr. Musett Brown, in moving the bill to repeal the Registry Act, considered it a duty he was bound to carry out, in the interest of the public, the same time as he gave it to the public, in the year 1820, it was passed by the Assembly, and on its passage, it was opposed by a large number of the members, who, at the close of the session, determined to object to it on the ground of its being an act of oppression, and of its being in the highest degree injurious to the public interest. The bill was read, and was read a second time, and was committed to the committee of the whole House.

Mr. Musett Brown said that the bill had been introduced by the hon. member for St. Andrew's, and that the house had been asked to consider it, and to pass it into law. The bill was then read a second time, and was committed to the committee of the whole House.

Mr. Musett Brown said that the bill had been introduced by the hon. member for St. Andrew's, and that the house had been asked to consider it, and to pass it into law. The bill was then read a second time, and was committed to the committee of the whole House.

Mr. Musett Brown said that the bill had been introduced by the hon. member for St. Andrew's, and that the house had been asked to consider it, and to pass it into law. The bill was then read a second time, and was committed to the committee of the whole House.

Mr. Musett Brown said that the bill had been introduced by the hon. member for St. Andrew's, and that the house had been asked to consider it, and to pass it into law. The bill was then read a second time, and was committed to the committee of the whole House.